Role of planning over 150 years

- 1840-1915: Birth of U.S. planning rooted in congestion, public health, social reform (housing and sanitation) and civic beauty.
- 1915-1930: Technical age. Zoning and state-enabling legislation, zoning and subdivision ordinances
- 1930-1970: New Deal, 701 planning grants, FHA, Interstate Highway System, urban renewal, suburbanization, fair housing act.
- 1970-1980: Advocacy planning, public participation, environmental planning, social equity and historic preservation.
- 1980-1995: Economic development, outcome-oriented, city revitalization, urban design and architectural/design review.
- 1995- present: Environmental/social justice, new urbanism, anti-sprawl, smart growth and sustainability (Environment, Economy and Equity). Smart and intelligent cities.

APA Values

The Planning Movement

- Goal 1: Emphasize the relevance and value of planning through effective advocacy and by means of a coordinated communications and marketing strategy
- Goal 2: Pursue social, economic, and racial equity by advocating those planning activities that effectively move America's communities toward a more just future
- Goal 3: Advance and promote the planning movement by cultivating the next generation of planning leaders through a systematic leadership development program

APA Values

Our Members

- Goal 4: Offer APA members products, programs, and activities that are useful and interesting, and that encourage a greater proportion of our members to be involved in all association activities.
- Goal 5: Continue to provide our members with access to the best training, continuing education, materials, and programs.

APA Values

Our Organization

- Goal 6: Deliver useful products and services, and build our membership, in ways that will ensure APA's political, financial, and operational effectiveness.

2012-13 APA Development Plan

- Goal 1. Lead nation and collaborate globally to address planning issues through innovation, creativity and problem solving. Emphasize planning and planner's value by effective advocacy.
- Goal 2. Lead America's communities toward a more just and sustainable future.
- Goal 3. Cultivate and inspire planning's next generation of leaders to ensure continuing growth of planning knowledge.
- Goal 4. Enhance excitement and enthusiasm for planning by developing new strategies to attract a broader audience.
- Goal 5. One APA: We are one organization with one mission. We succeed by working together to plan and advance the goals and strategies of the Association.
